a) The 32nd-note must be perceptibly detached from the next-following dotted sixteenth-note, and this latter sustained for its full value—a mode of execution peculiar to such rhythms in the old masters; compare Händel's Prelude to the F-minor Fugue, and Bach's Prelude to the G-minor Fugue in Part II of "The Well-tempered Clavichord?"

b) This run should be performed expressively, and in the second half with a slight retardation, so as to bring out the melodic outlines.

c) Carefully observe the increasing value of the "lifting-note;" the first time, the sixth eighth in the measure is only a sixteenth-note; in the next measure, the D on the second eighth is a full eighth-note, while the F on the sixth eighth becomes a quarter-note. This effects a melodic intensification.

4 5 3 4 5 a) 5 3 5 3 5 3 b)

The first system of the musical score for 'Allegro di molto e con brio.' It features a treble and bass staff in 2/4 time. The tempo is marked 'Allegro di molto e con brio.' with a quarter note equal to 144 beats per minute. The key signature has two flats. The music begins with a piano (p) dynamic and a 'ton.' marking. It includes various articulations like accents and slurs, and dynamic changes to sf (sforzando) and p (piano). The system ends with a 'cresc.' (crescendo) marking and a 'b)' marking. Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-5 above the notes.

a) The relation between the movement of the Introduction and the Allegro is properly this: That a whole note in the latter is exactly equivalent to an eighth-note in the former. Consequently, the Allegro may be begun at the rate of M.M.♩=182, which movement would not, however, be fast enough further on, in view of the passionate character developed.

b) In tremolo-figures like these, the player should be content to mark only such bass notes (and then only at the first stroke) as indicate a new progression in the harmony.

c) The direction agitato also calls for a non legato as strict as possible, which, of course, must not impair the evenness of the movement.

a) Although this "second" subject, too, is passionately agitated, the unvarying tempestuous sweep of the first cannot be kept up throughout. Play the first measure of each four-measure period—the prelude bass—somewhat more quietly, the following three with all the more animation; shade the 16 measures in E \flat -minor differently from the parallel passage in D \flat -major; in short, invest the entire dialogue with the most varied coloring possible.

b) Execution:  according to the familiar rule, that all graces take their value from, and are played within, the value of the principal note.

c) Execution:  according to the same rule; beware of the facile and tasteless triplet in eighth-notes, to which even the anticipated passing shake would be preferable, though against the rules.

a) These first 4 measures are to be played without the least retardation, yet very quietly, and with no accentuation of the accompaniment.

The musical score is written for piano and consists of five systems of staves. The notation includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, dynamics (f, p, sf, ff, decresc., pp), and performance instructions like "Grave. (Tempo I.)" and "legatissimo. (lunga)". There are also fingerings and articulation marks throughout the score.

a) The hold (pâuse) must be sustained precisely 3 measures, so as to form another 4-measure period.

But a quarter-rest should precede the reprise of the first division:

b) Retard the entrance of the B in the bass, in order to enhance the pleasurable suspense attendant upon the enharmonic change of the diminished chord of the seventh in the transition from G-minor to E-minor; and play the following passage throughout with full dreamy freedom.

Allegro molto e con brio.

The musical score is for a piano piece in F# major, 2/4 time, marked 'Allegro molto e con brio.' It consists of six systems of two staves each. The first system is marked 'D.G.' and 'p cresc.' in the right hand, and 'f' in the left hand. The second system has 'f' in the right hand and 'p' in the left hand. The third system has 'dimin.' in the right hand and 'p cresc.' in the left hand. The fourth system has 'p poco cresc.' in the right hand and 'dim.' in the left hand. The fifth system has 'dim.' in the right hand and 'più diminuendo.' in the left hand. The sixth system has 'pp' in the right hand and 'cresc.' in the left hand. Various musical notations such as accents, slurs, and fingerings are present throughout the score.

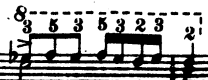

a) Despite the identity of this phrase with that in meas. 5 of the first Grave, it must now be played with a wholly different expression—or, rather, with none whatever, this being rendered necessary by the doubled rapidity of the movement (♩ in the Grave = ♩ in the Allegro).

b) Although the phrasing  etc. would more nearly correspond to the original form of this passage in meas. 7 et seq. of the so-called second subject (E♭-minor), it would not be in keeping with the general (progressional) character of the development-section.

c) The player should slightly sustain the several tones  but not so as to make the movement heavy.

Musical score for piano, measures 150-159. The score is in G major, 4/4 time. It features complex piano textures with many trills and rapid passages. Dynamics range from fortissimo (ff) to pianissimo (pp). Performance instructions include marcatissimo, sempre piano e legato, dimin. senza rit., M.T. ten., cresc., and dim.. Fingerings and articulations are indicated throughout.

a) As an exception to the rule, this trill must not begin on the auxiliary, so as not to blur the melodic outlines; seven notes  vigorously played suffice in such rapid tempo

a) In the original the decrescendo begins at this measure, which seems to us rather too prolonged for 6 full measures, — the more so, because an actual forte would be inadmissible in the preceding; for this reason we consider a poco cresc. more suitable for the first two measures.

b) Take care not to play E^b instead of F in the right hand, as a C-minor chord is out of the question here; the C in both Soprano and Bass is simply a passing-note of the dominant chord.

a) To the best of our knowledge no one has yet remarked the striking affinity of the theme of this movement, even with reference to its external melodic structure, to that of one of the loftiest Adagios of grandest scope from the Master's last period;— we mean the Adagio of the Ninth Symphony, written almost a quarter of a century later. The performance of both demands an equally inspired mood. The player's task, to "make his fingers sing," may perhaps necessitate a more frequent use of the pedal than we have indicated, which must of course be controlled by a most watchful ear.

b) This first middle section of the Rondo (for such this Adagio is in form) may be taken slightly meno andante, i. e., slower; but no more so than needful (so as not to drag), and, therefore, in only a few places.

c) The turns in this and the next measure should not commence with, but immediately after, a sixteenth-note in the bass, thus:

The musical score consists of five systems of staves, primarily in the bass clef. The first system is marked a piacere. and includes dynamics mf, dimin., ten., cresc., ten., and cresc.. It features complex fingerings and slurs. The second system is marked Tempo I. and includes slentando., M.T., ten., and p. The third system includes p, espress., and pp, with a section marked S.T. II.. The fourth system is marked dolente. and includes leggiero. and cresc.. The fifth system continues the cresc. dynamic. The score includes various musical notations such as slurs, ties, and specific fingerings (e.g., 1, 2, 3, 4, 5).

a) A tasteful execution of this grace is impossible in strict time. An abbreviation of the first two principal notes (C and B \flat) being quite as impracticable as a shifting of the inverted mordent into the preceding measure as an unaccented appoggiatura, the measure must simply be extended by an additional 32nd-note.

b) In this repetition of the theme, the left hand may be allowed to play a more expressive part; and, on the whole, a somewhat lighter shading of the melody is now admissible by way of contrast to the following (gloomier) middle section.

c) The ascending diminished fifth may be phrased, as it were, like a question, to which the succeeding bass figure may be regarded as the answer.

The musical score consists of six systems of staves. The first system begins with a brillante. marking and features a sf cresc. dynamic in the bass. The second system includes a ff dynamic and a decresc. marking. The third system starts with a pp dynamic and a poco cresc. marking. The fourth system includes a f dynamic and a ritenuto. marking. The fifth system includes a p dynamic and a dolce. marking. The sixth system includes a molto espress. marking and a dim. marking. The notation is dense with many sixteenth and thirty-second notes, and includes fingerings and slurs.

a) It appears advisable slightly to hasten this measure and the next, and then to retard the third not inconsiderably; the former on account of the cessation in the harmonic advance, the latter by reason of the varied modulation, which must be quite free from disquieting haste in its return to the theme.

b) Though strictly subordinated to the melody, the triplets should be brought out with animated distinctness.

c) The two 32nd-notes in the melody may very properly be sounded with the last note of the triplet of 16th-notes in the accompaniment; whereas a mathematically exact division would probably confuse both parts.

The musical score consists of five systems of staves. The first system begins with a mf dynamic and a large slur over the first two measures. The second system starts with a p dynamic and includes a dim. marking. The third system features a pp dynamic and a espress. marking, with a C1. T. annotation. The fourth system is divided into two parts, 'a)' and 'b)', with various fingerings and slurs. The fifth system includes a sub-section 'c)' with dynamics ranging from f to pp, and includes a triplet marking.

a) Execute like a triplet:

b) In the original, the shading of this passage is marked differently from that two measures before, the diminuendo already beginning with C, and not with A \flat as here marked. This latter nuance – the prolongation of the crescendo – appeals to our feeling as the more delicate, “more tenderly passionate,” to quote Richard Wagner’s happy remark on the “Interpretation of Beethoven.”

c) Mark the separation of the slurs in this figure and those following; the six notes sound trivial if slurred together.

Rondo.Allegro. ($\text{♩} = 96.$)

M.T.

The musical score is for a Rondo in 2/4 time, marked Allegro with a tempo of 96 beats per minute. It is in the key of B-flat major. The score is divided into five systems, each with a piano (piano) and violin (violin) part. The piano part is in the left hand and the violin part is in the right hand. The score includes various dynamics, articulations, and fingerings. The first system starts with a piano (p) dynamic and an 'espress.' marking. The second system has a mezzo-forte (mf) dynamic. The third system has a mezzo-forte (mf) dynamic. The fourth system has a piano (p) dynamic and a 'leggiere.' marking. The fifth system has a piano (p) dynamic and a 'tranquillo.' marking. The score ends with a 'cresc.' marking.

a) Although this third movement is less "pathetic" than the preceding ones, the player alone will be to blame should the Pathetic Sonata end apathetically. The original, to be sure, contains only the most indispensable expression-marks, which it has been the aim of our Edition to supplement efficiently; as, for example, by the crescendo ending piano in measures 2-3, by emphasizing the distinction to be made, in the figures for the left hand, between the parts (tones) which are essential (independent) organic elements, and those which are mere harmonic filling; etc.

b) In executing this grace, the player must be careful not to produce the effect of parallel octaves with the bass (F-Ab, and in the next measure Eb-G); rather than this, the slide might be treated as an appendage to the foregoing notes.

The musical score consists of five systems of staves. The first system shows a piano introduction with dynamics p, sf, and cresc.. The second system includes a section marked 'a)' with dynamics f, dim., and p, and a section marked 'b)' with sf and cresc.. The third system features a section with f, cresc., and mf, and a section marked 'Cl. T.' with p and espress.. The fourth system includes a section marked 'ten.' with p and cresc., and a section marked 'R. 4' with p. The fifth system includes a section marked 'c)' with p and sf. The notation is detailed with fingerings, slurs, and articulation marks.

a) There can hardly be a doubt that the Master was compelled, by the restricted compass of the keyboard of his day (only up to F³), to content himself with the fifth of the dominant chord, instead of rising to the higher seventh (A^b) as in the three other parallel passages. A change in conformity with his original intention is impracticable, however, because the ensuing measure would then be made to lie an octave higher, and would sound somewhat thin for the first time (it is immediately repeated in the octave).

b) These imitations, although piano, must be played with great animation, and not in that characterless legato which might be called anti-symphonic.

c) The preceding Remark applies equally to this and similar passages.

The musical score consists of five systems of staves. The first system features a treble and bass clef with a key signature of two flats. It includes markings such as mf cresc., ff, and a). The second system has a M. T. marking and p dynamics. The third system includes p and mf dynamics. The fourth system features f and p dynamics, and a cresc. marking. The fifth system includes mf cresc., f, più, and p dynamics. There are also some markings like Rw. and  in the first, second, and fourth systems.

a) The fingering given by us serves to aid in executing this run with the exact rhythmic divisions desired by the composer. The hold which follows appears really superfluous; for, by the prolongation of the chord through $1\frac{1}{4}$ measures, all demands of the pulsing rhythm — which goes on even during the rests of a piece — are fully met.

a) The tempo, of course, remains the same, but free from any fluctuating agitation. Observe, that the theme "proper" begins with an ascending fourth, consequently, the left hand should be slightly emphasized in the fifth and sixth measures. This holds good for meas. 13, 14, etc.

b) The mark ff is set rather early, in view of the fact, that the intensification continues through the next six measures. For this reason, the player will do well to husband his strength at first.

Musical score for piano, measures 162-171. The score is in G major (one sharp) and 3/4 time. It features complex piano techniques including triplets, sixteenth-note runs, and dynamic markings ranging from piano (p) to fortissimo (ff). Measure 162 starts with a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 163 continues the triplet and adds a half note in the left. Measure 164 features a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 165 has a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 166 has a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 167 has a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 168 has a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 169 has a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 170 has a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left. Measure 171 has a triplet in the right hand and a half note in the left.

a) The more tempestuously the 12 preceding measures have been played, the longer may this hold (see Note a, page 160) be sustained.

a) These next 13 measures should be played with considerable freedom as regards tempo, and with a decided independent stress on the lower part in the left hand. Special attention should be paid to the composer's directions concerning both the shading of meas. 6-7 and 8-9, and their phrasing, which is not in one-measure rhythm (as the motive at the first glance apparently invites), but in two-measure rhythm. In proportion to the greater or lesser degree of passion put forth by the player before the calando, this latter is to be conceived as a diminuendo and ritardando. Excess in either direction is, of course, reprehensible.

b) Particularly note the Auftakt (fractional initial measure) in the bass, here representing the regular introduction . By playing the theme wholly without shading on its fourth (and last) appearance, the close is well prepared and led up to.

The musical score is divided into six systems, each with a treble and bass staff. The notation includes various dynamic markings and performance instructions:

- System 1: Starts with a sf (sforzando) marking, followed by p (piano) and cresc. (crescendo).
- System 2: Features con fuoco. (with fire) and ten. (tenuto) markings.
- System 3: Includes sf più f (sforzando più forte) and ff (fortissimo) markings.
- System 4: Contains sempre ff (always fortissimo) and p tranquillo e semplice. (piano, tranquil and simple).
- System 5: Features pp (pianissimo) and fff (fortissimissimo) markings.
- System 6: Ends with a fff marking and a c) annotation.

a) Moderate the tempo on commencing this measure, in order that the ensuing run can be executed precisely according to the given divisions and without the least retardation. The following hold may be sustained very long—as long as the sonority of the piano permits.

b) A ritardando in this epilogue would be in bad taste; the tempo must be strictly sustained to the close.

c) The fff is found in all the old Editions, — almost the sole instance where this superlative, surely as frequently intended as rarely used is employed by the Master. Hence follows the necessity of an unusually powerful crescendo in the preceding run.
